EXPLANATORY NOTE.

The class graduating in 1891 was the first in which the Scientific Course of study was equal in amount to that of the Classical Course, the work preparatory to that of Freshman Year in the former Course having previously been one year shorter. Commencing with that date, the amount of work has been the same in each of the two courses, and also in the Literary Course, the first graduates from which were members of the class of 1896.

The Select Course, which was offered only to members of ten classes, (1885 to 1894), was two years shorter than the full courses, and no degree was conferred at its completion.
